INTERACTION DESIGNER

Dear Zara Henderson,

I have been following the work of Rapid7 for quite some time, and I was excited to see that you had released a UX Design placement role for 2022. Upon looking through Rapid7's products, I particularly like the clean design and functionality of the Threat Command interface. I would love to be part of a team creating such impressive designs.

Over the last thirteen months, studying Interaction Design at Ulster University Belfast, I have become more and more passionate about UX Design. I always enjoy every step of the process, from researching to wireframing, mockups and pro-totyping. I have become very familiar with design softwares such as Figma and Adobe Illustrator in this time, and feel very confident in the work I produce using them. Being a very keen learner, I am also looking to develop my skills further in other softwares such as Sketch and Adobe XD in the coming months.

I think I'd be a good fit for this role as I believe that such relevant, pressing issues deserve to have high quality, efficient solutions - and that's what Rapid7 supplies. I am also someone who loves a challenge, and so I think Rapid7 would be a great place to learn and develop my UX design skills. I'd be thrilled to have the opportu-nity to work there.

I hope to hear from you soon!

Thank you,
Nicole Picton
